State Modular Building Programs - Understanding Impact of State Labels on Building Projects

Is your building fully compliant with the state modular building program requirements?

There are currently 33 states that have a modular building program for buildings being installed or constructed within their boundaries, with a 34th to be added by the end of 2017.

Each state monitors and administers their programs in different ways. Parkline has years of experience navigating and complying with these programs to ensure that your buildings meet the applicable requirements.

Did you know...? You should be aware that failure to comply with necessary regulations can jeopardize project cost, schedule and professional reputation. States have denied occupancy permits, administered fines or required deconstruction, inspection and reconstruction for buildings that do not comply. If you are unaware of these programs and how they apply to your project, let us help you!
