While everyone else thought we already had the best Industrial Fiberglass Shelters on the market, our production team thought better. As a prime example of our innovative participative management system, we've found a better way to bring it all together!

"Our clients have always expressed their overall happiness with our structures, but that doesn't mean we don't look for ways to improve our efficiency and increase their level of satisfaction." says our Production Director, Mr. Brandon Kiser, "I was intrigued when our production team proposed a sensible way to increase quality while lowering the cost of our fiberglass shelters. As a result of their innovative approach, we were able to streamline our production. The result is reduced material use, faster production, and a much stronger and more attractive exterior finish!"
